Warsaw, August 29, N. S.

THE Day before Yesterday Prince Wiesnowieski, Regimentary of Lithuania, was accosted by a Lieutenant of the Polish Army, who came briskly up to him while in the Field of Election, and said, that he was surprized to hear that the Muscovite Troops were in Lithuania, without his having opposed their Entring: The Prince asked him how it was possible? The Lieutenant answered, If he did not know, he should give up the Command to one that did; whereupon the Prince fell into a Passion, and a Follower of his struck the Lieutenant, which occasioned a great Disturbance. Yesterday Morning the said Prince passed the River Vistula, which runs by the Town, and went where the Lithuanians are encamped, accompanied by the Prince Sangusko Marshal of Lithuania, the Prince Radzivil Master of the Horse, and several of their Friends. The Primate and Senate sent a Deputation to them to come back, but to no Purpose.
